Mago Academy, in partnership with Ubiquity University, offers an MA, a Ph.D., or an MA/Ph.D. online programs in Creatrix Studies. Creatrix Studies established by Dr. Helen Hye-Sook Hwang draws extensively from her research on Ceto-Magoism (the Whale-guided Way of Mago, the Creatrix). Find Ceto-Magoism Sources here.

Creatrix Studies developed by Dr. Helen Hye-Sook Hwang offers students versatile lenses to explore pivotal insights shed in primary and secondary sources of materials, which are available but largely marginalized, if not prohibited, in contemporary mainstream academic studies. Dr. Hwang herself has created a scholarly field, which she names Ceto-Magoism (the Whale-guided Way of Mago, the Creatrix) for over the past two decades. Mago is the Korean/East Asian word for the Cosmic Mother or the Creatrix. Hwang maintains that Ceto-Magoism is the pre-patriarchally originated matrix bequeathed by Shaman Queen Mothers of the ancient world across cultures and remains demonized, if not mystified, as the sea-monster/dragon/serpent in the world's major religions.

Students through MA and Ph.D. Creatrix Studies are encouraged to explore their own thesis through transdisciplinary and/or comparative approaches. They are invited to experience intellectual/spiritual guidance through the process of their own research activities, which can be applied in creative and innovative projects as well as self-healing and building self-identity. Creatrix Studies brings its researcher home within oneself. Find Creatrix Studies Programs here.
